

Time before 0

It all started at a time where there was no time when everything was nothing, pure nothingness.

In this infinity, there appeared a thought, a single thought that changed everything and nothing.

It was not known.

What was it thought? Why was it thought of?

Who thought it?

This paradoxical uncertainty echoed throughout nothingness, leaving behind a feeling of emptiness. This feeling crushed everything into a single point, into a dark-stone.

The moment it was formed, it exploded into infinite dark fragments, flying in all directions with a single purpose, finding the original thought.